Discussion of the Prototype Global Sustainable Development Report

Jill Jäger

1 July, 2014
Credibility, Relevance, Legitimacy

Choices (and trade-offs) in the design of an assessment process determine its influence.

- Relevance: the ability of an assessment to address the particular concerns of those using it (e.g. geographic and thematic coverage for relevant decision-making authorities)
- Credibility: whether the knowledge assembled is believed to be valid (information, methods and procedures)
- Legitimacy: acceptability and/or perceived fairness of an assessment (my interests have been taken into account, transparency)